recovery among outpatients with severe mental illness: A 2-year follow-up study. Approximately one-third of individuals with severe mental illness receive no mental health services during the first year following discharge from an inpatient hospital. To describe the predictors of time until first outpatient mental health service contact after discharge among individuals with severe mental illness, and investigate which predictors are associated with time until recovery among those who received mental health services.
An observational cohort study. Participants were outpatients discharged from 6 major mental health hospitals and community-based mental health centers across Ontario, Canada, between January 1, 2012 and June 30, 2013.
Propensity-score matching was used to match participants with mental health services to those without mental health services on 6d1f23a050
